HOT WEATHER RULES

Things to Do That Will Make Your Horses Safer and More Comfortable

Load lightly, and drive slowly. Stop in the shade if possible.

Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still.

When he comes in after work sponge off the harness, muck and sweat his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet but not his legs.

If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge. Use vinegar water if possible. Do not turn the hose on him.

Saturday night give a bran mash, lukewarm; and add a tablespoonful of salt.

Do not use a horse-hat, unless it is a canopy-top hat. The ordinary bell-shaped hat does more harm than good.

A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry it is worse than no hat.

If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower him with water, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre in a quart of water; or give him a pint of coffee.

Cool his head at once using wet cloths. If necessary, chop ice, wrapped in a cloth.

If the horse is off his feed, try him with two or three cups of cold milk, bran, and a little water, and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.

Watch your horse. If he steps sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.

If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, the him outside, with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night, he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

These rules are prepared by the Boston Veterinary Relief Association, whose office is at 15 Beacon street, Boston, Mass. They also publish a book on "Horse Care" and have copies of any of these rules will be sent free on application.

A former Norwich resident, Mrs. David R. Barnard (Mrs. Mitchell), who has been with her sister, Mrs. Percival Barnard, at Stafford Springs, while gaining strength after a recent operation at the Putnam hospital, has returned to her home in Sterling.

NEW YORK CHILDREN QUARANTINED

Health Officer Brophy Issues Order Effective at Once—Little Ones Must Remain on Premises or Indoors For Period of Three Weeks—Order is Precautionary Measure Against Spread of Infantile Paralysis.

Health Officer Edward J. Brophy on Friday issued an order quarantining all New York children who have recently come to this city or who may come here during the infantile paralysis epidemic in New York and Brooklyn. The order is in effect that all these children shall not leave the premises where they are living for three weeks. It is the duty of the parents of children have been brought here from New York since the disease made its appearance in that city and the order has been issued to prevent a possible outbreak here. Health Officer Brophy said Friday night that the names of all those who break quarantine will be placed in the hands of the city attorney and that a penalty will follow.

A child may apparently be in good physical condition and yet have the disease in his or her system and it is very liable to make its appearance in a few hours. Health Officer Brophy said that some people are under the impression that an examination of the child can determine whether the child has the disease. This is not so in some cases. It is impossible to tell whether the child has the disease in the system until it makes its appearance. The order is in effect that the parents of children brought here from New York since the disease made its appearance in that city and the order has been issued to prevent a possible outbreak here. Health Officer Brophy said Friday night that the names of all those who break quarantine will be placed in the hands of the city attorney and that a penalty will follow.

SEAMAN'S BODY IS FOUND IN THAMES

Enlisted Man Had Been Missing From Naval Base Since Tuesday.

The body of John C. Bohlin of Chicago, Ill., a seaman in the U. S. navy, floated on the steamship Fulton from the local naval base was found Friday morning in the river at the public landing opposite the Union station, New London, by the crew of a tender for the base. The man has been missing since Tuesday, July 4. The body was discovered on the bottom at 7.30 o'clock.

Bohlin, who was a coxswain, got shore leave over the holiday and went to New London where he spent the night. He went to the public landing with other members of the crew but when the tender arrived at the base, the coxswain was missing. No general alarm was given out and the fact that the sailor was missing was not generally known except at the base.

Friday morning the first tender from the base was docking at the landing when the man on the box of the tender noticed the body on bottom which was clearly visible, the tide being low. Police headquarters were notified and Officers Charles Hammond and David Nagle went to the scene.

A call was sent to Medical Examiner H. H. Heyer and on his arrival a rope was passed under the body and it was pulled to the surface. Dr. Heyer gave permission for the removal of the body to the undertaker's rooms for Robert H. Eyles in Main street and sent a call to the naval base.

The clothing of the man was removed and the body was placed in a coffin. A board of inquiry probed the death of the man and gave a verdict of accidental drowning.

After a conference at the naval base a report of a board of inquiry was sent to the navy department at Washington. The department notified the man's family.

FUNERALS.
 Horace A. Fitch.

Funeral services for Horace Austin Fitch were conducted by Rev. J. E. Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon at his late home, No. 14 Penobscot street. There was a large attendance.

material have been made in large quantities. Searchlights for coast defence, land positions, and field troops have been developed. Wireless telegraphy has been formed. The Army has at its disposal a great number of motor lorries for the transport of troops and wounded. The number of aeroplanes has been largely increased. These are provided with bombs, machine guns, and other armaments, and as regards speed and raising power, they have been brought up to the standard of the latest military industry. New aeroplanes, although Holland, remain dependent on foreign countries for motors.

As regards the medical service, the reserve hospital accommodation has been increased by arrangements with 150 civilian nursing institutions. Moreover an institute of military dentists has been established. Vaccination against smallpox, typhus and meningitis is being carried out.

An unfavorable comment on the relations between commanders and men in the Dutch Army is the fact, now made known, that many thousands of soldiers engaged in the fighting at Easter, when leave was refused them owing to the special circumstances that made the position dangerous for Holland. Several companies have been meted out to the men concerned. Incidentally the Minister mentioned that 50,000 men were in the army at the beginning of mobilization.

No special announcement is made regarding the number of trained men which the country now possesses, but former Minister of War, Mr. H. Cuijns, says the total has increased to some 176,000 men. The army and the available Landstorm are trained there will be a force of 630,000 men available.
